Two more comments to bring up, please:

1. Stordahl has a load limit on The Livingston Mtn pit. And they are going over the load limit almost every day. Why isn't the county checking on it?
2. Is this going to be a issue with Mtn Top Quarry? How will they ensure Stordahl sticks to the rules?

My apologies, this video is from another nearby quarry. Although, I hear from neighbors in Yacolt that the blasting is unnerving to them as well.

This video of how the Yacolt Mountain Rock Quarry blasting effects the local neighbors is alarming. It's bad enough when 200+ trucks roll past my house but it has nothing on this.

Please share at tonight's hearing. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vMfgnk12NA&feature=youtu.be>

Hello Mark,

Thank you for the email. We will include your comments for the record. I have included Nicole Snider in this email. The mine has some specific conditions that they are supposed to follow.

If they are not following these conditions of approval on the permit, then they might need to correct their operations to match the conditions of approval.

Please follow-up with Nicole.

Subject: Concern about Yacolt Mountain Mining Expansion

Gary,

I'm writing to you in hopes that the county will change its position on allowing for the expansion of the Yacolt Mountain Mining Expansion. I live near the corner of Kelly Road and Lucia Falls Road. My driveway exits on to Kelly Road from a blind corner. I've had several near misses with the very large 8 axle 50 ton trucks. I've witnessed or seen the aftermath of three accidents, two of which the trucks ended up blowing through the stop sign and ended up down the embankment near the East Lewis River. It is very fortunate that they didn't hit any cars or pedestrians. I've also seen the results of two accidents on Lucia Falls/Rock Creek in which these trucks took out a power pole. I fear that one day my family won't be so lucky and that while exiting our driveway we will become the next crash victim of one of these run-away trucks.

6 days a week these giant trucks (up to 200 a day) proceed as if in a parade rumbling past my house causing vibrations, piercing squeaking, and loud engine noise, not to mention the diesel pollution and dust that fills my yard. Trash and bottles filled with urine thrown from these trucks line the sides of Kelly and Lucia Falls/Rock Creek Road.

While the traffic study says there would be no significant delays caused by the expansion it doesn't account for the livability and safety risks residents have to deal with each day. I'd also like to express that I don't believe the reports are representing the data accurately enough. 200+ trucks a day is a serious livability issue and causes challenges with our communities quality of life.

Please share my opposition at the August hearing. I hope that you and the county will consider the local resident's needs, their quality of life, and our livability over the needs of a single business.

Thank you for your consideration.

Thank you so much for the information and photos you provided and our concerns with the already heavy trucking traffic. On the day we talked we had already been out of the truck and another was heading up traffic. After being in South I have found that there are more the same and there have gotten worse. The only I could have given you would be that I have no response to I apologize for the delay. I am sorry I can't respond to you faster and sorry. The government of the state continues to not act fairly quickly. I had that this response is going to put my family at a cross street on the county road that we drive. I am against this expansion and not that we are even looking for this. We should be looking at regulations of increasing public safety in the state such as increasing the amount of trucks and trailers on the roads, hours of operation, controlling the health in general drivers, speed, how many people can be behind them before they meet pull over, and the list goes on. Thank you for the email.
