Learn about Community Transit and Tech

Whether transportation is provided by transit, public or non-profit providers, volunteer drivers or neighbors, ensuring access to safe and affordable mobility options for those who do not drive is critical to an individual's ability to live independently.

Colleen Kuhn will discuss the key role that the Human Services Council plays within the transportation industry. Kevin Chambers is an independent consultant focusing on the intersection of technology, mobility and human services. He will identify key technologies that are driving change in transportation and the resulting emerging industry trends.
