V. BOARD RESPONSIBILITY

Under the City of Vancouver Ordinance M-3243 (VMC Chapter 17.39), the Clark County Historic Preservation Commission has the responsibility for reviewing matters of historic preservation within the City of Vancouver.

The applicant's statement of significance for the nomination identifies Criteria 1, 2, and 5. Criterion 1 involves associating the structure to events that have made a significant contribution to the broad local, state, or national history. Criterion 2 relates the structure to a distinctive architectural characteristic of a type period, or method of design or construction or representation of a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction. The nomination identifies Criterion 5 regarding persons of significance in national, state, or local history.

VII. PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

The Salvation Army Building at 311 W. Evergreen Boulevard in downtown Vancouver dates back to 1952. In comparing the applicant's recent photos to the copies of the original blueprints indicates very little exterior modification. The applicant notes slight alteration to the original cladding as well as to the original doors and windows. The floor plan is asymmetrical containing three adjacent sections. The northeast wing is a single story and contained the entry foyer and administrative spaces. The central wing has two stories and contained the chapel on the upper floor and the recreation and dining hall on the ground floor. The southernmost section is two stories and contained the band assembly area on the ground floor and the "Home League" meeting room and classrooms. The building exterior elevation form is three adjacent multi-tiered horizontal masses resembling modern "Wrightian" architecture. The building foundation is concrete. The exterior building walls are clad in a running bond, roman style, brick veneer pattern. The wall brickwork is topped with a cornice of horizontal bands of redwood. The roof structure is flat.
