Learn about Trees and Healthy Communities

Trees are an essential component of a healthy, livable community. Trees and other natural features provide environmental benefits, such as providing clean air and water. They also beautify our streets, significantly increase property values, and improve our mental and physical health and well-being.

Jesse Batty, Urban Forester with the City of Vancouver and Sarah Fox, Planner with the City of Camas will talk about how trees and urban forestry play a critical role in restoring older parks, expanding the tree canopy and assisting with planning for street trees, well landscaped urban environments, green streets and trails.
